the dream dress

No one piece captures fall's opulent mood quite like Dolce & Gabbana's sumptuous velvet dress. Its scarlet shade – the color of the season – and layers of luxe tulle petticoats make for a princess-style party number with modern appeal. Just add fabulous heels and heirloom jewels.

ANDREA DELLAL

The former model – and mother to a formidable fashion family – reveals her secrets to staying glamorous

Where in the world are you now?

In Ipanema, Rio de Janeiro.

Where is home – Brazil or Britain?

Both. I moved to London when I was 18 and – children and grandchildren later – I felt very patriotic at the Queen’s Jubilee! But Rio is home, too, I was born and have family here.

Your favorite accessory?

Shoes – they can make an outfit. I’m very lucky to have a daughter [Charlotte Dellal of Charlotte Olympia] who makes beautiful shoes.

Your favorite label?

I collect a lot of different designers, but if you look in my wardrobe, it’s largely from Dolce & Gabbana. I love their dresses; they are perfect for my body shape.

Your most memorable moment from your model years?

I loved doing the shows for Thierry Mugler in Paris. They were fabulous.

THE NEW BLACK

Carbon, caviar and sable – black on black is the new style directive

Fashion is forever evolving, but you can always count on black. Slick, seductive and bewitching, the pigment with staying power is amplified this season, worn top to toe in textures that work from dawn to dusk. Take the razor-sharp shifts and boxy jacket combinations at Calvin Klein Collection, or the glossy leather shorts, sheer knits and tailored patchwork coats at Givenchy, proving that an ebony palette is just as punchy as acid brights. Mastering the look is easy – just mix and match fabrics, experiment with proportion and add tough-luxe accessories for extra drama. Are you ready to join the dark side?

MAXI LENGTHS
Follow Ming Xi's lead and dare to wear a floor-skimming dress for day with oversized shades for downtown cool

TOMBOY TAILORING
Dark leopard-print loafers refresh Elena Egorova's tuxedo-inspired cut. A bow-bedecked bag adds girlish flair

DAYTIME SEQUINS

THE GAME CHANGER

A woman with long, wavy brown hair stands in the center of a city street at night. She is wearing a red, patterned, double-breasted suit consisting of a jacket, a skirt, and matching pants. The jacket has white cuffs and a ring on her left hand. She is also wearing black shoes with white details. The background is a blurred city street with lights and buildings.

The thing about Marc Jacobs is that he's always ahead of the game. A visionary who presses the style-reset button each season, he knows what we want before we do and makes fashion fun. What might look a little daunting on the runway is infinitely wearable up-close; it's his attention to detail that makes each piece so special. Lucky, then, that his new collection is packed with sure-fire hits: playful textures – tweed woven with tinsel, bright lamé and chunky crochet knits – and clever shapes, including lampshade skirts, boxy sweaters and oversized tailored jackets. This season, layering is absolutely key – try skirts over pants and wrap scarves over shirts. It's all-out cool.

The classic topknot is elevated to new heights for fall – just see Rosie Huntington-Whiteley’s super-sleek do, or Mary Katrantzou’s tousled chignons. “It’s all about extremes,” says celebrity hairdresser, Barney Martin. “Go for pumped-up texture or a high-shine finish.”

LIFESTYLE
HOOP DREAMS

Just think of the amazing wardrobe potential in this. It's the retro fitness craze that's come full circle – hula hooping is now the exercise of choice for Hollywood's most fashionable faces, including Beyoncé and Liv Tyler. Even Michelle Obama is a fan, while pop diva Grace Jones hula-ed her way through her performance at the Queen's Diamond Jubilee Concert earlier this summer.
